On Monday, September 9th, the members of the London Women's Committee met at Miss Clarke's, on the Bourne Estate to make a small presentation to Miss Freeman, who has accepted a post as organizer of an American Women's Suffrage organization. . . . Miss Freeman's parting words will not be forgotten. They will inspire us in the great work of reforming the conditions of women shop assistants. We are glad, one and all, to have met her, and to have gained from her the inspiration and enthusiasm which has been the making of the movement. Miss Freeman leaves England loaded with good wishes from a host of admirers, amongst whom may be numbered the members of the section, who wish her good luck, glorious success and happiness in the splendid work for the uplifting of woman, in which she will be engaged on the other side of the water, work for which she is undoubtedly eminently fitted.

—The Shop Assistant.

The audience were deeply moved by her earnest championship of the wronged and oppressed.

—Wimbledon Mail.

Miss Freeman made a highly interesting speech, pointing out the peculiar position in which women often found themselves owing to entirely man-made laws.

Miss Freeman was received with applause.
